The City Council of Staunton yesterday decided not to give up the bonds issued for the benefit of the Valley railroad. The city attorney gave his opinion to the council that Staunton's last subscription could not be required until Roanoke should have completed her subscription. A meeting of the stockholders was held, and the action of the city authorities having been made known, Mr. Robert Garrett, president of the company, immediately tendered his resignation. On motion of Decatur H. Miller, the resignation of Mr. Garrett was refused, and Mr. Garrett consented to remain in his position for a time. A dispatch says that Mr. P. P. Pendleton, of Baltimore, will be Mr. Garrett's successor.

The Charlottesville Chronicle says that the paradise for all Northern farmers who want to change to a better climate and more fertile soil, with all the advantages of civilization, is Virginia. The Piedmont section of the State mer; Second Lieutenant J. E. Bloom; Sechas attracted many settlers from New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio, who are doing well. Others can find plenty of room and a hospitable greeting. They need not expect to get good land here for nothing, but they can get it for a lower price than they would have to pay for it in any of the Western States, in localities where there is easy access to markets, and where there are orderly, law-abiding citizens and religious and educational advantages for their families.

The buffalo-goat, which is causing so much destruction among cattle in the Southwest, is a small insect, not more than half the size of the house-fly, which suddenly appears in the air by millions and settles upon all four-footed animals within reach. A horse or cow will be literally covered with them at night; in the morning the animal will be found dead and swelled to an enormous size. The bite is very poisonous, and the wound quickly festers. Cattle owners find that the most effective way of protecting their animals is to cover them with a coating of diluted tar, but if that cannot be done fires are built and the smoke drives off the insects.

Policeman Robert Frazier, of Nashville, Tenn., had the temerity to interfere yesterday with Joe Reid, colored, of that city, who was whipping his wife. Frazier was prompily shot dead, and the defender of marital rights was lodged in jail. A later dispatch says: "The excitement over the killing of Police Officer Frazier by Joe Reid, colored, to-day grew more and more intense during the afternoon and evening, and culminated at 8:30 to-night in a large, excited crowd gathering in front of the jail and demanding the keys from Jailer Heaverin, who refused to give them up. They then immediately attacked the building, forced an entrance, and at 10:30 o'clock, after forcing open four heavy iron doors, succeeded in reaching the cell in which the negro was confined, the door of which was soon broken open. Reid was seized, a rope fastened around his neck, and hurried to the Suspension bridge, from which he was thrown, with the intention of hanging him, but the rope breaking, he fell to the rocks beneath, a distance of ninety feet, and from thence into the river. He was shot once on the way to, and again at the bridge. The body has not yet been recovered. The alarm was given on the first indication of riot, and a large police force was sent to the jail, but were soon overpowered and driven away by the rioters. Letter from Gen. Fitzbugh Lee. The following letter has been received by by Gen. Bartlett, of this city, formerly of serenade Wednesday night by ex Confederates :- Rich. Whig. RICHLAND, STAFFORD Co, VA., April 27, 1875.

General W. F. Bartlett: MY DEAR SIR: - In common with many other ex-Confederate soldiers, with unfeigned pleasure I have read the remarks recently Building, $130.

Just such soldierly sentiments, generously felt and expressed, will do more in a brief space of time towards restoring good feeling, fraternity and fellowship between the two sections of a common country than all the reconstruction elequence of political partisans delibertate quietano.

Your words in reference to Federal soldiers are equally applicable to the Confederate solbetween the soldiers of the two great sections of our great country fraternal relatious were established long ago," and we feel that if such a felicitous companionship of sentiment could have found a resting place in the hearts of other classes of people, the rehabilitation of Its speedy redemption from poverty and deso lation would have followed, and once more, as cipline, with instructions to report a rule to a glorious destiny for the Republic.

THE DROP LOCK GATE. - There was made in this city last winter a drop lock gate, and at the opening of the canal this spring it was placed at the top of the lock at North Branch, about four miles east of this city, where it has been in use ever since. If it is found to sucthe canal will be turnished with one, possibly

The construction and mode of working the new gate are very simple, and require but little explanation. It is composed of timbers bolted together to form one gate. It is used only at the top of the lock -that is the end next the higher body of water-but instead of being trance, as in the case of the double gates, it is placed ten feet farther out, or at the entrance. It swings upon hinges at the bottom of the gate is simply let down, something after the manner of opening an old fashioned secretary, and the boat passes over it. It is closed by levers, acting upon the chains and drawing it up into place, or, frequently, the weight of the water will push it into place, after it has been slightly raised.

The advantage to accrue from the introduction of this new system of lockage is very great. It virtually adds ten feet to the length of the lock. The canal boats can therefore be made ten feet longer than at present, and their tonnage increased ten or twelve tons.

Still further improvements in the transportation department of the canal are contemplated, but as they depend somewhat upon the success of the new lockage system, their consideration is left for the future. - Cumberland
